Tuesday, November 7, 2017

Reception at 5:30 PM | Dinner at 6:00 PM | Speaker presentation at 6:45 PM

Michael Nelson, editor of The Elections of 2016 (Sage/CQ), and CMC's own Andrew Busch and Jack Pitney, authors of Defying the Odds: The 2016 Elections and American Politics (Rowman & Littlefield), will join together in a panel discussion to examine the 2016 elections one year later. What have we learned about the reasons for the surprising victory of Donald Trump in November 2016? What have the results of the election been so far? And, after one year, where are American politics headed?

Michael Nelson is the Fulmer Professor of Political Science at Rhodes College, a Senior Fellow at the University of Virginia's Miller Center, and Senior Contributing Editor and Book Editor of the Cook Political Report. John J. Pitney, Jr. is the Roy P. Crocker Professor of American Politics at Claremont McKenna College. Andrew E. Busch is the Crown Professor of Government and George R. Roberts Fellow at Claremont McKenna College.

This panel discussion is sponsored by the Rose Institute of State and Local Government.
